Is this you?

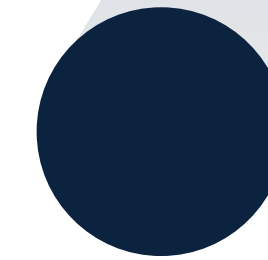

You are working on carbon accounting and management, but the landscape is increasingly complex and moving fast. You don't have the specialist skills and resources within your organisation to meet stakeholder expectations and deliver the reductions required, and so recognise the need for further guidance and support.

Drivers

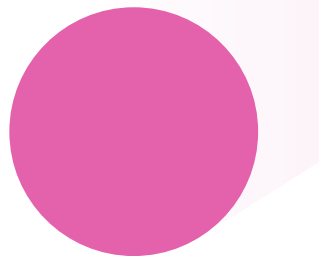

The IPCC's 6th Synthesis Report has made the urgency to reduce emissions, and the risks of inaction, clear. The market is responding with asset values being affected, governments and investors expecting greater disclosure and occupiers looking to reduce emissions from their rented spaces. Stakeholders are increasingly looking for clarity and confidence in your response.

How we help

We can support real estate clients with all stages of the net zero carbon journey. From baselining, materiality, and risk identification, through to ambition and strategy setting, reporting, technical audits and delivery, covering embodied carbon and offsetting on the way. We can provide advice and support from inception through to implementation and work with you through all client and stakeholder engagement. We support clients to identify, define and manage transition pathways and associated disclosures, such as TCFD.

Benefits

Technical, strategic and tactical insight and expertise into how to respond to the net zero carbon agenda, at market, portfolio and asset levels. A clear picture of current and future operational, commercial and corporate risks and opportunities, and the practical tools and approaches to manage these.
