

Net zero targets

Is this you?

You want to set a net zero target for your business aligned with relevant external frameworks, such as the Science Based Targets initiative. You have set a net zero target, but now need to define a more detailed road map and strategy to achieve it. You need support to devise the most commercially attractive route to achieving your climate goals.

Benefits abound

Establish a robust response to the net zero challenge. Meet the expectations of your customers, investors, employees and society as a whole. Reduce your regulatory and market risk, by proactively managing your transition to net zero. Avoid the reputational risk of greenwashing.

The world is changing

Large companies are now expected to set corporate net zero targets, if they haven't already. These commitments span whole value chains, meaning that other companies in the chain are encouraged or required to contribute, for instance by setting their own targets. But setting targets is not enough – companies need to explain how they are going to achieve them if they are to avoid the risk of being accused of greenwashing.

How we help

We work with dozens of companies large and small to identify their pathways to net zero, set targets and get those targets validated, if required. We continue to work with many of our clients to implement their net zero plans and report on progress, so bring that experience back to our strategy and target setting work.